TUESDAT EVENING, MARCH 12.

CONGRESSIONAL CHAPLAINS - Congress pays a parson to do its praying, and he pays them back by making his prayers harmonize exactly with the spirit and policy of the majority who elect him. Mr. Raymond, of the New York Times, who has been a witness to the business for the last two years, gives his impressions as "Religion, like everything else in Washington, is shamelessly prostituted to the necessities and conveniences of partisan politics. Chaplains are elected just as door-keepers and tidewaiters are appointed, on account of their political opinions, and they are expected to pray and preach in the service and for the profit of the party that elects them. Party zeal is often quite as apparent in the opening prayer of the Congressional Chaplain as in the ward harangue of the Treasury Clerk. The Chaplain is expected to pray for his party friends and at his party foes. Usually his petition is a sum mary of the proceedings of the preceding day, and a statement of what ought to be done on the day at hand. For every bill passed and vote given in accordance with party purposes and plans, devout thanks (if anything of that kind can be called devout) are returned to the Almighty, who is earnestly exhorted to open who stands on the other side. The irreverence of some of these so-called prayers often borders on blasphemy. They are seldom anything more than stump-speeches made with the stands of the speeches of the closed eyes and addressed ostensibly to the Father of all; while in sentiment, language and general style, they would shock any intelligent and cultivated audience.'

In place of the name of Fayette McMullin for Governor, the Marion Record has nailed the following ticket to its editorial mast head: "We will take in exchange for our paper, corn, wheat, flour, pork, and produce generally, never refusing greenbacks.

REDUCTION IN PRICES!

As the season is far advanced for the sale of Dress Goods, we will offer great inducements to our friends. Our stock of DRESS GOODS embraces almost every desirable style and color, among which are something entirely new in French Repps.
